

I very frequently use the internet for education purposes and to run my small business. I very concerned that with the changes made to net neutrality my ability and access to resources necessary for these operations and ultimately my survival is in danger. I believe that when I am buying internet access that I am buying the ability to use the entire internet. Not so specific domains or companies that are decided by forces beyond me. In my area the only company with any infrastructure is Comcast so there is not a truly competitive market here making much of the reasoning behind possible decisions surrounding net neutrality incorrect. I believe the FCC should act to allow all people access to the internet as a communication network without letting private companies decide what gets through.
